

DRUIDS HEATH, MARSHAM ROAD AREA (AREA 4)

ED BROWN

The semi-detached houses on Marsham Road and are similar in style to a lot of Birmingham's semi-detached houses. Fairly spacious with front and rear gardens. These houses would have originally been council owned but many of these houses are now privately owned. Front gardens have been dug up in favour of parking spaces and you can see from the aerial photographs that a lot of the houses have been extended or had conservatories added to the back.

I love the layout of this part of Druids Heath, it's a lovely example of town and country planning. The wildlife along the canal and the Chinn Brook makes for a rather pleasant setting, all under the watchful eyes of the nearby tower blocks on Britford Close.
